TASMANIANS continued to excel at the 16th AUSSI Masters National Swim Championships in Devonport yesterday.

The home State scored 14 heat wins and three Tasmanian clubs are placed in the top four in the national points summary after two days of competition.

Meanwhile, the 200 m freestyle relays were confused by controversy with a number of protests fired by competitors.

Organisers were unable to finalise details of the two events for men and women late last night and will today add the all-important points to the national club list.

Devonport Devils members Jane Duff, Royce Bracken, Kathy Smith and Camelia Newey were among the winners, with the latter two emulating their victories of the previous day. Duff was successful in the 25-29 year age bracket 100 m backstroke, while Bracken won the 60-64 year section in the same event.

Smith won the 30-34 100 m butterfly and Newey, the 50-54 200 m individual medley.

Meanwhile, Launceston Aussi club member John Pugh repeated his winning effort from Tuesday when he took the 50-54 100 m butterfly.

Other successful Tasmanians yesterday included Vicki Titley, Peter Goss, Peter Tonkin, Madge Guesson and Victoria Moore (two wins), all from Launceston, and Justine Bamford, Ivan Cunningham and Brigitte Potter, all of Hobart.

One of the most impressive mainland swimmers has been 35-year-old Power Points, Victorian entrant Jobst Schmalenbach, who is undefeated.

Similarly, his club sits atop the national rankings with 345 points.

In second place is Launceston Aussi with 313, followed by Devonport Devils 306, and Hobart Masters 289.
